

Fifth Grade ELA

November Newsletter

We wrapped up the month of October by performing a Reader's Theater for the younger grades and then reading our own spooky narratives by flashlight in the classroom. It was fun to hear how everyone crafted a different type of story. Throughout the month, we read Restart by Gordon Korman. We were pretty shocked by how horrible Chase treated his classmates before his accident and were glad to see that he was much kinder afterwards. In between reading sessions, we reviewed our grades and went through our classwork to find our best papers to share during parent teacher conferences. We created some goals for the upcoming trimester to either improve our grades or keep them as good as they were during the first trimester.
